12:00pm – 12:45pm		FIRST CONCURRENT WORKSHOPS
PYRMONT THEATRE	1.1 MASTERCLASS	How to Build & Implement a Net-Zero 2050 Corporate Strategy The depth of structural change required in the economy to limit global warming to 1.5°C will require everyone – countries, cities, the private sector, individuals – to strengthen their ambitions and actions, without delay. Global climate action is being led by corporates that have developed sophisticated emissions reduction strategies and #netzero2050 targets in line with climate science. Join our experts in a corporate climate strategy masterclass, that will step you through the journey of setting corporate climate strategy - including shadow carbon prices, carbon procurement strategies, operational emission reductions, science-based targets, emerging standards such as PCAF and SBT Net Zero Standard, getting executive buy-in, managing risk – and going public with it all. MODERATOR: Matt Drum, Managing Director, Ndevr Environmental PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Alicia Maynard, General Manager, Sustainability & Technical Services, ISPT James Vesper, Group Head of Sustainability, Goodman
	1.2 PANEL Q&A	Driving Decarbonisation through Industry Partnerships COVID has taught us that there are some systemic issues that cannot be faced alone – and that the climate crisis requires cross-sectoral partnerships to drive technological innovation, efficiency gains, and behavioural change. Join this panel of industry leaders who are driving the development of very low, zero and negative emissions reduction solutions through industry collaboration and supply chain engagement. MODERATOR: Tzila Katzel, Regional Lead, Low Carbon Policy & Advocacy, BP PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Dave Carter, CEO, Austral Fisheries Monica Richter, Director, Materials Embodied Carbon Leadership Alliance Josh Martin, Senior Director, Australia & New Zealand, Engie Impact
Room C2.2 & C2.3	1.3 2030 SCENARIOS	How did we Finance Transition Opportunities & Resilience Building? By 2030 we have seen unprecedented levels of capital shifted from institutional investors, banks, venture capital into the development and deployment of industrial and nature-related climate solutions. How did we manage this? How did investors manage risk and disclosure obligations, and build the sophisticated financial models, products and taxonomies that drove the expansion of a carbon constrained economy? Join this discussion for an update on the Australian Sustainable Finance Initiative and contribute to a discussion on how climate-related finance and investment will become a critical partner for decarbonisation and drawdown. MODERATOR: Katharine Tapley, Head of Sustainable Finance, ANZ PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Jacki Johnson, Co-Chair, Australian Sustainable Finance Initiative Ben Krasnostein, Managing Director, Kilara Capital Talieh Williams, Head of ESG, Victorian Funds Management Corporation
Room C2.5 & C2.6	1.4 MARKET & POLICY UPDATE	The State of Australian Carbon Market Reform Since early 2020, Australia’s carbon market and climate policy suite has been under review, and under reform with a pending Long-Term Emissions Strategy. Join a panel of national climate policy experts to get an update on implementation of the King Review recommendations to improve the Emissions Reduction Fund and incentivise voluntary market activity – as well as understand progress made on the Technology Investment Roadmap that aims to unlock low emissions technology across the nation. MODERATOR: Brad Kerin, General Manager, Carbon Market Institute PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Shayleen Thompson, Executive General Manager, Clean Energy Regulator Helen Bennett, Head of Climate Change Division, Department of Industry, Science, Energy & Resources Susie Smith, CEO, Australian Industry Greenhouse Network

3:50pm – 4:35pm	SECOND CONCURRENT WORKSHOPS
PYRMONT THEATRE	2.1 MASTERCLASS How to Participate in Australia’s Growing Carbon Market Net-zero corporate goals are increasing across the global economy, resulting in more and more organisations entering our national carbon market. In an ever-changing and evolving commercial environment, it’s critical for new and existing participants to understand how to manage the strategic carbon procurement process, and how to ensure you can continue to access the right carbon product at the right price, when you need it. Join our experts for a masterclass on participating in Australia’s carbon market; how to develop your carbon procurement strategy to achieve corporate climate goals, and the tools you can use to ensure environmental integrity, transparency and accountability in every transaction. MODERATOR: Marco Stella, Co-Founder, Renewable Energy Hub Senior Environmental Broker, TFS Green PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Anna Hancock, Climate Change Strategy Principal, EnergyAustralia Gary Wyatt, Managing Director, Corporate Carbon John Davis, Commercial Director, APAC & North America, South Pole
	2.2 PANEL Q&A Navigating the Evolution & Linkages of Voluntary Carbon Markets Voluntary carbon markets are evolving rapidly and we are seeing a range of new standards, activities and transactions emerge across domestic and international markets. Join the discussion to explore a range of challenges on the horizon, including how environmental integrity, market transparency and accountability can be managed in a changing landscape where new voluntary carbon standards and products are emerging across the world. We’ll take a look at how global developments under the Paris Agreement will impact our domestic carbon market and unpack the critical role that the Australian Carbon Industry Code of Conduct and other schemes can play in ensuring our market matures with integrity. MODERATOR: Tom Spooner, Global Environmental Products Trading, Australia Team Lead, Shell PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Marion Verles, CEO, SustainCert Peter Castellas, CEO, Tasman Environmental Markets Lloyd Vas, Head of Carbon Trading, WeAct
Room C2.2 & C2.3	2.3 2030 SCENARIOS Expanding Indigenous Carbon Opportunities By 2030 Australian First Nations peoples are successfully generating social, economic, environmental and climate outcomes across Australia, and the respect for, and application of traditional knowledge and ancient land management techniques is embedded in carbon farming activities across the continent. How did we get here? How did we work with Indigenous stakeholders to create investment opportunities, market education and best-practice free, prior and informed consent and engagement pathways? Join our expert panel to discuss key issues still facing the top end, opportunities to support First Nations climate leadership across southern Australia; and what’s required to drive meaningful behavioural change over the next decade. PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Joanne Pellew, Project Coordinator, Carbon Offsets Australia Rowan Foley, CEO, Aboriginal Carbon Foundation Toby Adams, Director, Kullilli Bulloo River Aboriginal Corporation Kristina Koenig, Program Manager, Carbon & Enterprise Development, Kimberley Land Council

PLENARY FOUR Risks & Opportunities in Decarbonising International Trade

Our major trading partners and competitor countries are aligning around net-zero and stronger 2030 targets. Australia risks being left behind as aid, trade, and diplomatic relationships prepare for a carbon constrained future, but there are opportunities. Join this high-level panel to examine the implications of our decarbonising trade networks; the impact of increasing net-zero ambition and climate policies (including carbon border tariffs) on our economy, and the opportunities for Australia to export very low, zero and negative emission outcomes, technologies, finance and services.

MODERATOR: Emily Gerrard, Director, Comhar Group

PANELLISTS:

- Marc Vanheukelen, Ambassador at Large for Climate Diplomacy, European Union
- Vicki Treadell CMG, British High Commissioner to Australia, Government of the United Kingdom

	4.2 PANEL Q&A Engaging the Private Sector in Subnational Climate Action Australian states and territories have established strong climate policy positions, moving quickly to create market-based opportunities for decarbonization and negative emissions. Join a panel of sub-national representatives working to drive policies and initiatives that aim to catalyse private sector investment and create an environment for business innovation and new carbon market development. MODERATOR: Kathryn Pacey, Environment & Planning Partner, Clayton Utz PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Esther Bailey, ADirector Climate Resilience & Net Zero Emissions, Department of Planning, Industry and Environment Alex Graham, Executive Director, Conservation Policy & Planning, Department of Environment and Science Mark Rodrigues, Executive Director, Climate Change, Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning Neil McFarlane, Director, Climate Change, Coast & Marine, Department for Environment and Water
Room C2.5 & C2.6	4.3 2030 SCENARIOS How did Australia’s carbon market evolve to be a key driver of emissions reductions? Although initially focused on management and measurement rather than reduction, by 2030 Australia’s Safeguard Mechanism has evolved to become a policy that guides decarbonisation and drawdown investments across large parts of the economy. How did we get here? What about the climate culture wars? Did jobs and economic opportunities in the transition lead to bipartisan support? What supporting policies were needed? Join our expert panel to discuss the next phase of Safeguard Mechanism development including the King Review recommendation to allow for crediting below baselines – and how to avoid negative market impacts in the process of building stable, long-term compliance markets that reinforce voluntary climate action. MODERATOR: Gloria Karaiskos, Director, Climate Change, Carbon Market Institute PANELLISTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Tennant Reed, Principal National Advisor, Australian Industry Group Bret Harper, Director of Research, Reputex Emma Beal, Economics & Policy Researcher, Blueprint Institute

4.4 MARKET & POLICY UPDATE

The State of Asia Pacific Carbon Market Development

Asia Pacific carbon markets are evolving quickly, as investors and policy makers move to build coalitions of knowledge sharing, commercial interaction and capacity building across the region. Join our panel of regional experts to get an understanding of the current political, economic and carbon market environment, and where there are opportunities for Australia and New Zealand to share its own expertise and establish a stronger leadership role in the Asia-Pacific and beyond.
